Okavango Delta

The Okavango Delta is the world's largest inland delta, uniquely flowing into the arid Kalahari Desert rather than the sea, creating a "pulsing" oasis of lagoons and channels.

Victoria Falls, the world's largest curtain of falling water, spans 1,708 meters with water volumes varying by season. Peak flow (February–June) hits over 500 million litres per minute, decreasing significantly in the dry season.

Botswana is home to the world's largest elephant population – over 100.000 animal – which follows seasonal regional migrations rather than one single mass movement. These herds move between dry inland areas and permanent water sources such as the Chobe River and Okavango Delta, driven mainly by food and water availability, especially during the dry season.
